

PARTICIPANTS PRAISE CAPITAL HORSE SHOW

Exhibitors, Engaged in "Get-away," Express Desire to Take Part Next Year.

Enthusiastic in their praise of the National Capital Horse Show, which concluded late yesterday, the exhibitors, who took part are busily engaged this morning in preparations for the "get-away." Many of the handsome horses that competed in the various classes were entrained last night for shipment to the homes of their owners, and the day grooms and stablemen are packing up the exhibits. With the single exception of the protest made by J. C. Love, of this city, no objection was registered against the awards made, and each exhibitor has expressed a desire to return and take part in next year's show. The championships presented yesterday were a fitting close for the exceptionally well filled program. While the contests between blue ribbon winners for the silver trophies offered in the championship classes were the features of the day from the point of view of the exhibitors, spectators manifested keenest interest in the concluding event upon the card, the championship high jump, in which Sir Akron, an army horse, belonging to Capt. William Mitchell, cleared a hurdle six-and-a-half feet in height. Having secured the greatest number of entries in its history, the National Capital Horse Show this year attracted patronage which exceeded all past records. Each day the boxes and stands were filled with handsomely gowned women, drawn principally from the smart sets. The general comment heard from experienced horsemen from all sections of the country credited the association with presenting the best open-air show given in America.

CONGRESS READY TO PASS WAR MEASURES

Leaders Say Whatever Legislation May Be Needed Can Be Hurried Through.

Much uneasiness and apprehension over the Mexican situation was apparent today at both ends of the Capitol. Senators and Representatives from the beginning have been skeptical of the success of mediation, but have taken the attitude that it was worth trying, and would at least enable many Americans to get out of Mexico who would otherwise be mistreated, imprisoned or killed. Congress stands ready on the briefest notice to pass war measures. The Senate Military Committee will report out the bill authorizing the President to recruit the regular army in to statutory strength if conditions grow more acute. It is likely to be reported out and passed in any event simply as a precautionary measure. On the House calendar is a resolution to make the appropriations carried by the army bill at once available. Chairman Hay, of the Military Committee, is merely waiting notice to push this through. Whatever other legislation may be needed, such as additional appropriations, legislation authorizing a call for volunteers, and the like can be hurried to passage in a twinkling. Senate and House leaders are trying to keep close tabs on Mexican developments. Senator Stone, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, calls daily at the State Department and the White House.
